There is need of provisions, clothes and money. As many as 1,000 refugees have been taken south. It is estimated here that the dead may reach 200. Great alarm is felt here because of the few settlers arriving from the burned area south of Beaupre.

mor, "and in that fight every man on this continent ought to give him his moral support. He ought to have the support of every lover of liberty, of every lover of fair play. That he has more executive force than any other man before the American people today is obvious to all."

Colonel Roosevelt then spoke of the reclamation of swamp lands, and continued:

"Furthermore, don't forget that the policy of conservation of the forests

Colonel Roosevelt said that "Nationalism" does not mean anarchy or it does not mean socialism. It does not mean attacking men.

What we are striving to do is to secure equal rights, that is, to eliminate special privileges, to try to start men in the race of life on a reasonable basis.

day the part that Colonel Roosevelt is to play in the campaigns of this year and in 1912, which were members of the Roosevelt Cabinet. Senator Taft is generally regarded as a staunch supporter of the administration. President Taft has relied much on him in getting his measure through Congress.

At a conference between President Roosevelt and Senator Elihu Root, of New York, caused much speculation in the very-to-day. Senator Root arrived shortly before noon and left again for New York at 7 o'clock. He would not discuss his visit to the President in any way. As to New York State, he summoned Senator Root to talk over prospective Supreme Court appointments and other things. This resulted in a revival of the rumor that Senator Root might himself become a member of that high tribunal. The
